Is Mr. Carlisle a Candidate?

We take from a Washington dispatch printed in the Boston Journal this interesting report:

The name of Mr. Carlisle of Kentucky has at times been mentioned in connection with the report that Grover Cleve and would not be a candidate for the Presidency. Now it is said by some of the friends and by several of the opponents of Mr. Carlisle that he is himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Pre idency, and that he will make an active campaign in endeavoring to secure it.
The statement is that Mr. Carlisle has cheerfully answered. told his friends that he will go before the Convention with the hope of get ting the nomination, and that the fact | W. A. KITE, Tennessee that he fives on the south side of Mason and Dixon's line shall not deter him or his friends from making the Canvass.

Mr. Carlisle's candidacy, if he should consent to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination, would be received respectfully by all and with enfine intellect and high character, and his public services have been noteworthy and honorable Whatever dis result of his own efforts and not the work of accident. He is able, honest and faithful to the Constitution. He is a fit man to be President; and it is no argument again-t him that he comes from a Southern State. Ho name should be included in every liof the D-mocratic statesmen whose talents and fidelity to their party and popularity in it mark them as worthy of its suffrages and vorthy to receivthe highest place at its hands.

The only serious objection to Mr Carlisle as the Democratic cand date is that he has been so conspicuous among the free traders that he might fail in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. On the off er hand, the generally conservative cast of his mind may be thought to have gained for CHAS. him the confidence of the great business interests in this part of the lous to criticism and so lacking in regard for either law or custom that he may consider it a distinction to go out of office without the acknowledgment usually given to a Speaker who has observed the proprieties of parliamentary decorum. His friend Mc-Kinley was compelled to offer the resolution of thanks before adjournment, and all the Democrats in the House ecorded themselves against it, as was are to be more than an idle form.

This action is not without pre cedent, but there have been very few instances in which more than a small minority voted against the resolution of thanks. Back in the old Federalist days, in the Fifth and Sixth Congress es, both Jonah Dayton and heodore Sedgwick-were accused of improprie ties in the chair and the Republicanome opposition to the vote or thanks in several later cases, but it never same to a party vote until the time of James K. Pols, who had shown him self a partisan in the chair, though he never went to such lengths as Reed Again, in the stormy days before the war, there was a party vote on the Orr upon the other, but no recent Speaker, with the exception of the ridiculous Keifer, has failed to hold the respect and confidence even of his opponents until this man Reed under ook to overturn all precedents.

And yet, from a party standpoint. he Democrats could better afford to hank Reed than the Republicans, for his conduct has been largely instru mental in the overthrow of his own party.-Philadelphia Times.
